In Figure 1, a network layer firewall called a "screened host firewall" is represented. In a screened host firewall, access to and from a single host is controlled by means of a router operating at a network layer. The single host is a bastion host; a highly-defended and secured strong-point that (hopefully) can resist attack.

In the blog "The Impact of Board Chairs," I talk about how board chairs make a significant impact on their executive directors, their boards as a whole, and the organizations they serve. At CompassPoint, I've had the opportunity to learn from many great board chairs who are indeed making an impact. Though none of these leaders are perfect, what is common among them is intentionality.
