How Vaccines Work | History of Vaccines

Vaccines work by imitating an infection or disease and stimulating the immune system to develop antibodies. Antibodies are the body's way of protecting us against disease or infections. The antibodies produced by vaccines fight disease without actually infecting us with the disease.

How vaccines work - NHS

Your immune system reacts to the vaccine in a similar way that it would if it were being invaded by the disease by making antibodies. The antibodies destroy the vaccine germs just as they would the disease germs like a training exercise. Then they stay in your body, giving you immunity.

Vaccine Basics - How Vaccines Work

Vaccines are like a training course for the immune system. They prepare the body to fight disease without exposing it to disease symptoms. When foreign invaders such as bacteria or viruses enter the body, immune cells called lymphocytes respond by producing antibodies, which are protein molecules.
