Isotopes Of Pennium Lab Answers

After completing this lab, you will determine the relative abundance of the isotopes of pennium and the average mass of each isotope. You will then use this information to determine the . atomic mass. of pennium. Recall that the atomic mass of an element is the weighted average of the masses of the isotopes of the element.

Remember that chemical isotopes are atoms that have the same number of protons, but different numbers of neutrons. Thus, chemical isotopes have nearly identical chemical properties, but some different physical properties. In this investigation, you will determine the relative abundance of the isotopes of pennium and the masses of each isotope.

Isotopes differ in the number of neutrons and therefore have different masses. Chemical properties of isotopes are also similar, although they may differ in some physical properties. In this investigation, the pennies will represent a fictitious element named pennium (Pe). The different masses will represent the different isotopes of pennium.
