Photographic paper is a paper coated with a light-sensitive chemical formula, used for making photographic prints. When photographic paper is exposed to light, it captures a latent image that is then developed to form a visible image; with most papers the image density from exposure can be sufficient to not require further development, aside from fixing and clearing, though latent exposure is ...

I love the way dark skin looks, but you have to face up to the fact that dark skin is dark, and it might take some extra work. The only way to get much detail in dark objects is to either overexpose it or optimize use of specular highlights, otherwise you're not going to see much of anything but whatever you've highlighted with makeup or jewelry, because it's dark.
