Many critics take a deterministic view of Hamlet's plot, arguing that the prince's inability to act and tendency toward melancholy reflection is a "tragic flaw" that leads inevitably to his demise. Is this an accurate way of understanding the play? Why or why not? Given Hamlet's character and situation, would another outcome of the play have been possible?

Do You Agree? ... In Hamlet "there are contradictions in detail which arise from haste and carelessness; there is obscurity as regards the motives and relations of the characters, which arises from an indifference to the questionings of a spectator who should be also a thinker or reader -- if indeed Shakespeare ever thought of reader at all. There is the contradiction between Hamlet's two ...
